4. The limited extent of local government resources, the limited nature of the demand for marijuana establishments based in Eureka County to serve a total population of approximately 2,000 persons, all of whom are not even eligible to possess or use marijuana, and the potential for negative impacts to the county’s citizens from an industry authorized by state law but still prohibited by federal and some state criminal laws, are all factors which mitigate against allowing marijuana establishments in Eureka County; and

5. Eureka County is a large but sparsely populated rural county predominated by agriculture, ranching, and mining activity, and as such marijuana establishments do not fit within Eureka County’s character and culture, and are incompatible with the existing land uses and land use categories described by the Eureka County Master Plan; and

The State Fire Marshall has authority granted to him by Nevada Revised Statute Chapter 477 to enforce his regulations and investigate alleged violations in counties with populations less than 100,000. Eureka County’s population is less than 100,000, so the State Fire Marshall has investigative and enforcement authority in Eureka County.

An overview of the procedures is included in the following diagram:
